The APA citation style is an author-year-system (just like Harvard Style and the Chicago Manual). This is to ensure that the sources you are referencing in your work can be tracked easily. A reference using the APA citation style contains the following components (cf. Beins, 2012, S. 5): (Author's surname, publication year, page number)

Reference Examples - APA Style

For example, to cite both print books and ebooks, use the books and reference works category and then choose the appropriate type of work (i.e., book) and follow the relevant example (e.g., whole authored book). Reference examples are covered in Chapter 10 of the APA Publication Manual, Seventh Edition

If a journal article has a DOI, include the DOI in the reference. If the journal article does not have a DOI and is from an academic research database, end the reference after the page range (for an explanation of why, see the database information page). The reference in this case is the same as for a print journal article.

The APA in text reference is in the format (author, date). When directly quoting from a text you must include a page number in the citation as given in the examples below. Including page numbers in all other circumstances is not required however, it is best practice to do so when referring to part of a work (e.g. a paragraph or chapter in a book).
